DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-12 are presented for examination on the merits.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Klabunde et al (US 6843919), cited on enclosed PTO-892 Form.

Claims are drawn to a process for controlled oxide nanoparticles which comprises incubating a fungus with a solution of metal salt to obtain a biomass, removing the biomass and filtering the oxide nanoparticles.

Klabunde et al teach a process for controlled oxide nanoparticles which comprises contacting under conditions of temperature at 15 to 50 degrees C, see column 5, line 36. Fungi are disclosed at column 4, line 20. They are formed from a metal salt solution, note example II, column 6.

The claims differ from Klabunde in that it is direct biological process whereas the disclosed process discloses that fungi can be selected for in their process.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the claimed invention was made to select for a fungi as the target substance in order to carry out a biological process for controlled oxide nanoparticles. The steps of the claimed process are disclosed by the cited prior art. One of skill in the art would have expected successful results with the conditions selected by Applicants because they are disclosed by the cited prior art.

It would have been well within the skill of an ordinary artisan to select for varied ambient temperatures and amounts and further to select from heavy metal salts like chlorides to incubate with the fungi because the reference clearly teach that the fungi are capable of removing these metals to provide for the oxide nanoparticles. One of skill in the art would have been motivated to modify the teachings of Klabunde in order to carry out a biological process for producing the nanoparticles. In the absence of persuasive evidence to the contrary the claims are rendered prima facie obvious over the cited prior art.

All claims fail to be patentably distinguishable over the state of the art discussed above and cited on the enclosed PTO-892 and/or PTO-1449. Therefore, the claims are properly rejected.

No claims are allowed.
